- (5) A (retail) class AMC 0.9% / I (institutional) class AMC 0.7%. (I-class for sums over £1m or at manager's discretion).
- (6) This figure will reduce if the fund increases in size: £30,000 of fixed costs over £10m = 0.30% but only 0.03% over £100m, for example.
- (7) The fund normally only buys and sells positions once a month to keep trading costs as low as possible.

The investment objective of the Fund is to provide capital growth over the medium to long term. The Fund will aim to meet its objectives by employing two primary investment techniques:

1. True diversification which may include exposure to equities, fixed income, commodities, real estate and infrastructure in different jurisdictions throughout the world, primarily using Exchange Traded Funds.
2. Formula-based trend following.

Monthly Commentary (April 2026)

What a difference a month makes; Despite the ongoing conflict in the Middle East, and oil sitting above $110 a barrel, stock markets decided to look through the geopolitical noise in April and rally hard. There was a resurgence in AI and technology stocks, with the S&P 500 hitting new all-time highs. Asian markets did even better, with Taiwan and South Korea surging on the back of their central role in the global semiconductor supply chain. Growth outpaced value, and small caps were back in fashion. Commodities had a strong month, driven by energy prices and increasing demand for the raw materials going into AI-related infrastructure. Government bonds, by contrast, struggled. Higher energy prices and inflation kept yields elevated in most markets, with UK inflation ticking up to 3.3% and the Bank of England continuing to strike a hawkish tone.

As we flagged in last month's commentary, the fund had already recovered some of the March losses in the first half of April. In the end, the fund ended the month up 3.5%, taking our year to date return to +4.3%. It was pleasing to see our diversified positioning working for us as various markets bounced.

As ever, we would caution against complacency. The geopolitical picture is far from resolved and inflation continues to be a real concern. A de-escalation in the Middle East could see energy prices fall and pressure on central banks ease, but a prolonged disruption will weigh on growth and see structurally higher inflation.

We will continue to rely on our broad diversification and trend following overlay to navigate whatever may come. To echo what we said last month: the key is to zoom out and keep a cool head.

Key Risks

- Counterparty risk: The Fund can conclude various transactions with contractual partners. If a contractual partner becomes insolvent, it can no longer or can only partly settle unpaid debts owed to the Fund.
 - Market Risk: External factors can cause an entire asset class to decline in value which would result in a decrease in the value of investments. The Fund aims to mitigate this risk by investing in all major asset classes in many geographic regions and owning assets which are often negatively correlated.
 - Concentration Risk: The Fund seeks to minimise concentration risk by owning a wide selection of Exchange Traded Funds which themselves own many hundreds of underlying assets.
 - Liquidity Risk: adverse market conditions may affect the ability to sell certain assets when necessary. The Fund invests nearly exclusively in large, liquid ETFs so liquidity risk should be significantly lower than in a more conventional actively managed fund investing in single assets.
